Dean J. Siotos, Managing Partner for Texas, has more than 21 years' experience in litigation, Dean aggressively protects his clients' interests in cases including construction defect, professional liability, product liability, environmental, premises liability, commercial/business disputes and high-exposure personal injury litigation, including transportation, medical liability, and numerous wrongful death cases.

Having served clients individually, as staff counsel for a national insurance carrier, and also within the structure of a law firm, Dean recognizes the value of developing strong client relationships and maintaining personal involvement in the case, from inception to disposition.

Dean handles comprehensive representation to both local and national shippers, brokers and carriers in Texas and across the United States. Dean helps clients handle a variety of transportation law issues, including contract negotiations, loss and damage cargo claims, and litigation and appeals in state and federal courts.

Dean strives to provide the necessary information and analysis to empower the client to determine the most favorable, efficient and economical litigation strategy. Dean's extensive experience additionally enables him to discern those circumstances in which a coordinated strategy, among several parties to the litigation, will best serve the client's interest, and work with other counsel toward the desired result. Dean's practical approach to litigation resulted in the ALM/Verdict Search top Texas construction defense verdict for 2015.

Dean has conducted nearly eighty jury and bench trials in venues all across Texas and is admitted to practice in all Texas federal districts.
