

We help organisations run
digital inclusion programmes that deliver real change

What do we do?

We provide the structure, support and learning resources needed to run successful, impactful Digital Champion programmes. We provide tools to measure progress. And consultancy to help target energy and resources in the right places. These programmes train Champions to help end users learn vital digital skills, build their digital confidence and thrive in a digital society.

What are Digital Champions?

Who do we help?

We're a social enterprise with decades of experience in digital inclusion. Over the years, we've teamed up with hundreds of housing providers, councils, health organisations and charities, as well as national and international private companies, to achieve digital inclusion through Champion models. Our clients tell us that our products and services provide the framework they need to drive forward their digital inclusion programmes.

We can work with you to create and embed a Champion approach that works for your organisation and those you serve and support.

How do we do it?

We specialise in Champion training and support because evidence shows it works. We have:

- Ready-to-go training and resources that help your staff become confident Digital Champions who can help others.
- All our training is online and can be done anywhere, at any time.
- Project Management tools that allow you to set up and run your programme, and monitor impact.
- More than 25 years' experience helping organisations deliver change.

Join our Network for just £100 per month

On average a Champion trained through our Digital Champions Network helps 30 people a year. But we know this can be limitless. With our annual membership you could train 10 Champions and support, at least, 300 people for just £100 a month.
