News feeds

Many websites have what are known as 'feeds' or 'RSS feeds' signified by an icon (see right) that shows on your browser when feeds are available.

You need to subscribe to feeds and have to download a 'feed reader' such as Google Reader. When this is in place, headlines from different websites will come in as part of your Google account, and you won't have to access those websites to keep up to date.

See our guide How to use an RSS or news feed for more information.
