

What is a web page?

 Print this guide

A web page is what you see on your screen when you access the internet via a browser. There are billions of web pages on the internet that are connected by hyperlinks to other relevant pages or information resources. Web pages can be accessed by entering terms into a search engine, which will produce relevant highlighted links for you to click on. When you click on such a link, the page should subsequently be displayed on your computer screen.
